Our advice is aimed at better understanding third parties and mitigating risk. At the same time, it brings an advantage by providing predictive intelligence that ensures the difference between success and failure of a business story.

Executive Checks Background

Thanks to hundreds of stories of satisfied clients, we know that it is almost impossible for organizations to recover from missteps and wrong personnel decisions. Screening of final candidates is also an important part of our leadership solutions, which helps to minimize the risk of choosing an unsuitable candidate. We offer professional screening services as part of selection processes when filling positions of CEOs and executive and supervisory board members. In addition to the private sector, we are also successful in finding managers to lead companies in the state and public sector. Through the screening process, we can evaluate the candidate efficiently and reliably through personal interviews with the candidate, verification of references, access to various databases or the use of automated search and verification systems. It is a discreet process, which primarily verifies the truth and completeness of what the candidate presents about herself, and whether she has omitted or concealed something important. In this framework, information from the media is verified and the candidate's credibility, reputation, conflicts of interest and overall background of the candidate are examined in various registers. With every candidate, we analyze her digital footprint in detail, which includes activity on the Internet and social networks, and prepare a summary identifying possible risks and potential threats. We give our clients the confidence that they know all the facts they need to make the right decision.
